

ABSTRACT

A method and apparatus renders an optical disk unplayable on a customer's optical disc playback machine. A portion of the information bearing surface of the optical disc or the light reflected therefrom, is altered for data destruction from a 5 predetermined area, i.e., a "Table of Contents" (TOC), in order to make the disc unplayable on the playback machine of the customer.